Prairie Town Business Men Killing Credit

GILBERT PLAINS, Man. (CP)—No more purchasing with promises in this Manitoba community. Credit's kaput.

The bill collector may have to leave town for lack of work, or so business men hope.

For in these days of "nothing down, easy payments" they have banded together and substituted cash on the line for credit buying. And no exceptions.

Four Held On Charge Of Swindle

LONDON (Reuters)—Scotland Yard arrested four men Friday accused of engineering the greatest attempted betting coup in modern turf history.

The men—two bookmakers and two racehorse owners—will appear in court here today on charges of heading a conspiracy to defraud the Bath Race Track Club.

Since last July when two horses were allegedly switched at the last minute, Scotland Yard detectives have been trying to crack the case.

The announcement of the arrest came shortly after rag peddler Leonard Phillips, 31, was sentenced to three months in prison at Bath for selling telephone cables at the track. He cut them half an hour before a horse running as Franciscan, a 10-to-1 longshot, won the disputed race.

Tall, broad-shouldered Maurice Williams, 46, who bought both horses in France early this summer, was one of the four arrested men. Others were London bookmaker Harry Kelly, Welsh bookmaker Gomer Charles, and William Rook who bought the winning horse from Williams after the disputed race. Bookmaking is legal in Britain.

Scotland Yard chased down dozens of bogus clues before Kelly announced he was willing to provide information which would "blow the case wide open."

Four Women Guilty Of Parading in Nude

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dressed in sombre colors, four Doukhobor women were convicted Friday of parading in the nude in their tent-village at Perry St.

The silent women came into court one by one on the arm of a police matron, and within minutes were pronounced guilty by Magistrate Graham Ladner.

Each trial took less than 10 minutes. The young and the old were convicted and remanded until Monday for sentence.

The youngest, Helen Repin, was 21, the oldest, Mrs. Annie Soloboff, about 80.

Only Mrs. Soloboff uttered a word. As she entered the court, room in a suburban Burnaby community hall, she muttered: "Slava Bohu"—praise the Lord—a traditional Doukhobor greeting.

She wore a print dress and a man's brown coat and was frail and grey-haired.

They were the first of 71 women to stand trial. Sixteen men were convicted Friday, bringing the complete number so far found guilty to 29. There have been no dismissals and no acquittals.

The other two women convicted were Annie Osochoff and Mabel Kalmikoff. Mrs. Osochoff kept her eyes closed during her eight-minute trial.

There were signs that the hunger strike of the Doukhobors may soon end. Many of the men now are taking fruit juices, but they still refuse solid foods.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Friday he was "not prepared to comment upon suggestions of Communist influence in the Kootenays."

He had been asked about a report from Montevideo, quoting Stefan Sorokin, spiritual leader of the Sons of Freedom, as blaming "fanatics instigated by Communists in Canada" for recent nude demonstrations in the Doukhobor country.

Sorokin has been in Uruguay, trying to arrange for migration of some of the Doukhobors to that country.

Mr. Bonner said he had "not been advised of the position of the Sons with respect to entering Uruguay."

Fall Flowers at Summer Show

Victoria Horticultural Society summer show opened at the Crystal Garden Friday and will continue today in the lower ballroom. One of the best shows in years, it features a profuse display of chrysanthemums, but dahlias, other fall flowers, vegetables and fruit are very much in evidence. Picture shows one of the big winners of the show, Mrs. C. J. Freeborn, 436 Durban, posing beside a display of 'mums and fall flowers arranged by the chrysanthemum group of the Victoria Horticultural Society. (See story on Page 2.)

No Neutrals at Talks On Korea, Allies Insist

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—The allies of the Korean war told the Communists in a second note Friday that they are still firmly opposed to bringing neutrals into the Korean peace conference.

The 16 UN members, including Canada, which fought with South Korea against the Reds, also provided Communist China and North Korea for an early reply as to the place and date of the conference.

Friday's note said the resolutions approved by the UN General Assembly last month, which limit the conference to belligerents plus Russia on the Red side, "speak for themselves and there is nothing further to add on that subject."

As the note went out, External Affairs Ministers Richard G. Casey of Australia and Clifton Webb of New Zealand seconded the appeal sounded Thursday by State Secretary J. Dulles of the U.S. for the Communists to make Korea a proving ground for their professed peaceful intentions. They also urged Russia to co-operate toward easing world tension.

The UN wants the conference to meet in either San Francisco, Honolulu or Geneva. The Reds have so far not replied on inquiries about where and when the conference should be held.

The views of the UN allies were contained in a formal communication sent on their behalf by the United States. It was dispatched through Sweden, following the same route of the first and similar communication of September 5.

Mr. Howe, heading Canada's delegation to the eighth session of the organization, suggested the one-year renewal until the United States makes clear its policy on international trade.

Re-examination of the agreement was also urged by the U.S. delegate, Samuel C. Vaughn, assistant state secretary for economic affairs, but he added that some member countries should also make internal reforms.

Voting Rights Set For 19-Year-Olds

Alternative Ballot on Way Out. Redistribution To Be Started

BY T. A. MYERS

Nineteen-year-olds will be given the vote under a "complete revision" of the Provincial Elections Act announced by Premier Bennett Thursday in the legislature.

The premier also made it clear that he will ask for abolition of the controversial alternative ballot this session, and for a shortening of election campaigns.

Mr. Bennett, in his first speech of the session, expressed concern that "many people who should be entitled to vote" now do not have that right.

Young people who had turned 21 since this summer's election would have to wait another four years before getting a chance to vote. They would be 25 before first exercising the chief privilege of citizenship.

"Young people coming out of schools and colleges... with 12 or 13 years of schooling" were responsible enough to vote, he said.

"I hope this session we can completely revise the Election Act... I hope the age will be reduced."

The premier did not say what "lower age" he had in mind. But it was learned unofficially later the new minimum would be 19.

The decision to cut two years off the voting age was a complete surprise.

The premier also ended any doubts about abolition of the alternative ballot. He noted that Opposition Leader Arnold Webber had called for an end to the 1-2-3 voting system, and "I hope the legislature can oblige him in that respect."

He pointed out, however, that without the alternative ballot in the last election, "the two old-line parties would have no representation in this house at all."

Among other changes in the election act will be a cut in the present 63-day time lag between the calling of an election and the actual vote. This would have the effect of shortening political campaigns.

The premier also made it clear that a house committee to be set up this session would be asked to reshuffle the seats in B.C.'s legislature, rather than merely to study the possibility.

He said the government sought no political advantage in the redistribution. The combined opposition of 20 members

Rocks Start Back

As a crowd of more than 5,000 roared, Victoria Shamrocks Friday night took a step back on the Mann Cup route as they eased to an 8-7, impressive win.

The game was close and rough throughout, but the Trailermen never got untracked against determined Irish checking.

The game threatens to be argued before the Canadian Lacrosse Association, as Pites objected bitterly throughout and manager Pup Curtin was ejected from the arena.

Peace To Get PGE Before Vancouver

It is imperative that the province's Pacific Great Eastern Railway become part of one of the national railway systems, Premier W. A. C. Bennett told the legislature Friday.

He said the line must be extended north from Prince George into the fertile Peace River country before being extended south from Squamish to North Vancouver. Only that way could it begin paying its way.

He gave the legislature a detailed report on the year's progress on the line and promised a complete financial statement at the spring session. But he turned down a CCF request for a committee discussion of the railway and its future.

Such a debate might prejudice negotiations now under way between the province and the CNR, he said.

"It is the purpose of this government to seek co-operation from the federal government and the national railways in settling a joint investment policy to extend the PGE, especially into the great Peace River country," he told the house. He said he hoped to be able to report progress in the spring, after a trip to Ottawa.

"It is imperative that this railway become part of a national system," primarily as a feeder line, he said.

The line must go north before it goes south, he said. The southern link to Vancouver would bring in no new business, but the northern section would tap a whole new area.

"There never has been a year when the road has paid all its operating expenses... and it's not doing so now," Mr. Bennett declared. This was in contrast to announcements 18 months ago that the PGE had at last begun to show a small operating profit.

Mr. Bennett said he had had "very friendly conversations" with CNR President Donald Gordon. Opposition Leader Arnold Webster's speech Thursday, in which he urged the government not to sell the line, "might have very serious effects on the future of B.C.," he said.

"If it was part of a national system, look at the highways we could build," the premier said. The government might also be able to spend more money on bridges, schools and hospitals.

Woman Seen Going to Austria Hunt for Mrs. Maclean Near Dead End

ZURICH (Reuters)—The international hunt for dark-haired, attractive Mrs. Melinda Maclean appears to be heading towards the same frustrating dead end as the search for her British diplomat husband two years ago.

The latest clue, from a Swiss railroad conductor Friday, added weight to the theory that she has vanished behind the Iron Curtain with her three children to join her husband, Donald, former chief of the British foreign office's American department.

The conductor told police he had seen a woman meeting Mrs. Maclean's description on the 6:58 p.m. train last Friday from Lausanne to Bern, on the Austrian frontier. He said she was traveling first class with either two or three children.

From Bern, Mrs. Maclean could have made train connections for Vienna and crossed into the Soviet sector Saturday afternoon without detection. But, as in the case of her husband, who vanished from a cross-channel ferry in France, there is no convincing evidence to bolster this theory.

The 37-year-old American-born woman disappeared a week ago after driving from her home in Geneva with her children to Lausanne. She parked her car in a garage there and said she would be back "in a week." Police are standing guard over the car but are virtually convinced she will not return.

It Isn't Worth Risking Your Life

If You're Awakened by Burglars, Go Back to Sleep

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP)—If you hear a burglar rattling around in your bedroom, don't try to be a hero. Your best bet is to play dead to the world.

This advice on the proper nocturnal etiquette if a burglar crashed your boudoir comes from Prof. Richard L. Holcomb, State University of Iowa specialist in police methods and an authority on the lore of house-breaking.

A former Kansas City, Mo., police lieutenant, Holcomb has assembled a complete compendium of breaking and entering in a book called "Protection Against Burglary."

He worked both sides of the street in gathering his material.

"I talked at length with several highly-skilled burglars now serving time," he says.

"I found that one kind of burglar actually prefers to work in the same room where his victims are sleeping—so he can keep his eye on them."

This type of burglar can be extremely dangerous. If he disturbs your slumber, the best thing to do is just go right on letting him think you're asleep.

"Don't sacrifice your life just to save $50, $100, or even $500 a burglar may find in your room," says Holcomb.

Other pointers Holcomb gleaned from the men who knew house-breaking best:

That house key you hide under the porch flower pot is duck soup for a burglar to find.

A skilled burglar can get through any door and into any sort of place.

If you keep your money at home (which is foolish) don't brag about it.

The best safeguard against burglary in a place of business is to keep it well lighted. A smart watchdog is a good protection for your home, if he can be trained to bark and keep barking whenever an intruder comes around.

Most burglars, Holcomb says, tend to become specialists. Sometimes they even get into a rut.

If a burglar has success in breaking in through rear windows, he may make a career of breaking in through rear windows even though there may be easier places to gain entrance.

On the other hand, some burglars are strictly opportunists. If they see a place that looks easy they'll break in on the spot without any advance planning.

Among the specialists is the "matinee burglar," who operates in the afternoon when many housewives are away at the movies, shopping or at the bridge club.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

MARILYN MONROE, Esther Williams and Jane Russell are the wrong shape for the United States army. They don't conform to the ideal measurements set forth in the good grooming manual of the Women's Army Corps.

The army measurements are based on the size of the wrist. To calculate the bust of the well-known WAC, multiply the diameter of the wrist by 5 1/2 to calculate the waist, multiply by 4 1/2 ... and so it goes.

M. Monroe, E. Williams and J. Russell are all too big in the bust, thighs and too small in the waist, it says. The only measurements of the three which suit the army's book are J. Russell's calf and ankle, which are reported to be 13 1/2 and 7 1/2 inches, respectively.

There are two possibilities. Either someone blundered and got the WAC measurements mixed up with the dimensions of the standard army mule, or else the blueprints for lady soldiers were drawn up by a WAC colonel who used to be a weight-lifter in civilian life.

You can be sure of one thing. Those specifications were not worked out by a man.

Examine the picture hanging above the pillows of 1,000,000 American and Canadian soldiers. Is it a copy of a 14th century Belgian master? Is it a portrait of a thick-waisted rifleman, measured by the Royal Canadian Engineers and found correct in all her dimensions?

The answer to both questions is negative. The picture tacked above 1,000,000 soldiers' bunks is a likeness of poor old misshapen, physically unfit Marilyn Monroe.

I have seen a number of good-looking army, navy and air force girls. But when the women's forces are mentioned, the image that leaps into my mind (and I wish it would leap out again) is that of a grumpy female officer or NCO with a gravel voice, a moustache and a build like a tank.

Some creature of this type must be in charge of the military department that plans the size and shape of WACS.

It is possible that the army admits girls who are different from the standard shape, just as it recruits men who have let their hair grow too long. Then at the manning depot, or womaning depot, a nasty-looking WAC sergeant struts down the ranks, grinding out orders like this:

"All right—you, you and you—Williams, Monroe and Russell—down to the beauty parlor and get some of that there fat massaged off yer lips—and on the double, see! We don't want no Miss America cuties 'round here, and you better get that iron peroxide blond 'eads, you & (S*) hunch of 'S*)!&!"

The sergeant would then number them off, left to right, by waist measurement, and march them off for a wrist inspection.

Historic Building Tumbling

NANAIMO—There may have been a fear or two among pioneer eyes Friday morning as the tower of the old post office tumbled to the ground from the cables of the demolition company.

Not long before the clock from this historic building, built in the reign of Queen Victoria, had been taken away. It is now in the hands of a committee for disposal.

As the old structure gradually dwindles away it brings back to many old timers here the early days of this city. For comfort in the passing of an old friend they may take pride that in its place, and occupying vastly increased space, will be a new federal building, the pride of a new era in the rapidly growing hub city of the island.

Immature Fruit Won't Store Well

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

No fruit will store well if it is picked before it is properly mature. The test of fully ripe apples is to lift the fruit up to the horizontal, and if it parts readily from the twig, it is ready for harvesting. If it requires a pull to detach it, it is still immature. As all the fruit on one tree does not ripen at once, it is best to spread the picking over several weeks.

This test of readiness for harvesting does not apply to pears, however. If you allow a pear to mature on the tree, it will turn mealy in storage and lack full flavor. If gathered too early, on the other hand, the pear will shrivel. The right time is just before the green base color turns to yellow, and a good guide is to lift a fruit up through the horizontal to a vertical position. If this movement parts the stalk without pull or force, the pear is ready for gathering. If not, let it hang a little longer.

It is most important not to bruise any fruit you intend for storage—there are some of fruit ruined every year by rough treatment during picking operations. In the orchards of the Okanagan, the pickers wear a canvas bag over their shoulder to carry the fruit, and if you have much picking to do, it might be a good idea to make a deal with your Colonist newsboy, and borrow the bag in which he carries his papers.

KEEP LIMITED TIME

It is no good trying to store the early-ripening varieties of apples or pears. The cell structure of these varieties is such that they will only keep for a short time.

The conditions for the successful storage are the same for both apples and pears. They must have excellent ventilation, a constant temperature somewhere between 40 and 50 degrees, and a fair amount of moisture in the air. These conditions slow down the natural ripening processes which would normally reduce the fruit to rotteness.

ATTICS NO GOOD

Attics are no good—they are too dry, and the temperature varies too much. For the amateur fruit grower, without specially prepared storage facilities, a slightly damp basement is best, especially one with an earth floor, if it can be kept ventilated.

Apples and pears breathe in storage, and the gas they exhale will speed up the ripening process if it is allowed to become concentrated, hence the need for good ventilation. If you can smell ripening fruit in your storage place, it is a sure sign that doors and windows must be opened to let air currents sweep through.

SLOW RIPENING

Low temperatures slow down the ripening, and dampness prevents shriveling. Apples are best eaten as they come from the storage room, but pears have the best flavor if they are allowed to come to room temperature before eating.

To Be Conducted by Dr. David B. Turner

British Columbia's foremost authority on conservation will deliver a 10-lecture course on British Columbia's heritage, commencing Tuesday when Victoria College night courses start for the fall season.

He is Dr. David B. Turner, BSA, MA, PhD, who is director of conservation, B.C. Lands Service.

Dr. Turner is a likeable person with a pleasant and interesting manner of expounding his subjects. He believes the most important resource in British Columbia is people and all other natural resources should be discussed and utilized in the best interests of those people, both now and in the future.

THREE ESSENTIALS

Dr. Turner thinks of resources as providing three things—food, fibre (shelter and clothing) and fun. A great fisherman and sportsman, there are few places in British Columbia he has not fished, hunted or explored.

He will discuss conservation of natural resources against the background of the world as well as in British Columbia.

His first topic will be "Why Conservation of Natural Resources?" This will be followed by the meaning, ideas, philosophy, and principles behind conservation.

The 10-lecture series will deal with the inventory, problems, interrelations, and place in the provincial and national economy, of the natural wealth of British Columbia.

The importance of natural resources in determining the physical, mental and cultural standards of the people will be noted throughout.

Lectures will cover the following subjects: meaning and philosophy of conservation, natural resources of British Columbia in general, soil, water, agriculture, forestry, fisheries, mining, power and energy, recreation and wildlife.

INTERESTING COURSE

Professor Robert T. D. Wallace, MA, director of Victoria College evening division, expects this course to be one of the most interesting offered at the college.

Dr. Turner received his doctor's degree in natural resources with emphasis on conservation, at Cornell University, New York. He was the chief instigator of the B.C. Natural Resources Conference and last year was president of the conference.

All his talks will be illustrated with color slides.

Calgarian Urges Jet Flying Boats

LONDON (CP)—Calgarian Brig. Gen. A. C. Critchley regards jet flying boats as the aircraft of the future.

In a letter to the Times of London, the former director-general of the British Overseas Airways Corporation says it is time to think seriously of jet flying boats, "which would so admirably serve the Commonwealth's needs."

Gen. Critchley, recently blind after an illness, says Britain can not go on indefinitely building huge airframes to accommodate land aircraft which are getting bigger all the time. The Comet III, he says, is going to require 2 1/2 miles for take-off.

Hobby Grower Big Winner At Brilliant Flower Show

A lady with a small garden and chrysanthemums as a hobby emerged as big winner in the Victoria Horticultural Society's summer show at the Crystal Garden Friday.

Mrs. C. J. Freeborn, 436 Durban Street, won 17 firsts and 11 seconds.

Her Millersdale 'mum was one of the showpieces of the event which saw more than 300 entries turn the lower ballroom into a blaze of color.

Although Mrs. Freeborn won the most prizes she failed to win one of the six coveted challenge trophies.

The show will continue Saturday.

Multi-colored chrysanthemums formed the biggest part of the display but there were big showings of dahlias, begonias, fruits and vegetables.

This summer's show saw several new features.

Perhaps the most striking new class was for a large arrangement of autumn flowers and foliage in a competition for the Dalziel trophy. Some of these displays in beautiful fall shades are five feet in diameter.

Mrs. E. McCabe won this competition with a striking arrangement of sunflowers, zinnias, 'mums, golden rod and foliage.

Judges were Mr. and Mrs. Young R. Rhodes, dahlias and miscellaneous; Mr. and Mrs. H. Estridge, chrysanthemums; Ed. White and Alan Litter, fruit and vegetables; Ken Robinson and Len Arnall, flower arrangements.

Miss V. E. Ashd., a won the Shriner Memorial trophy with an arrangement of annuals.

A new class for wall container of flowers was won by Mrs. Freeborn.

Of particular interest was a sculpture work representation of Pan and his pipe in bird bath form. This was designed and sculptured by Mrs. Gladys V. Sawyer.

Artistic arrangements are particularly eye-catching and fill three sides of the ballroom.

DECORATED TABLE

Decorated table contest featuring designs for any occasion brought in many admiring comments. A golden wedding table with bronze and gold pom-poms, dahlias, and chrysanthemums with a bride and groom under wedding bells as a centre piece, won first prize for Mrs. W. E. Turner. Mrs. M. Rush-ton's shower table featured miniature bride and bridesmaids and miniature gifts. It placed second.

DAHLIA DISPLAY

A non-competitive display of dahlias by Fred B. Carberry had a table to itself and showed 18 varieties of dahlias.

Forty-four Kikuyus Sentenced to Death

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—before they could give the Forty-four Kikuyu tribesmen were sentenced to death and four others to prison terms by this British colony's Supreme Court Friday for the Mau Mau's Lari massacre.

The 48 were charged specifically with killing a year-old child who was among 150 natives, hacked and burned to death by the anti-white Mau Mau.

Similar trials have been going on since last May. Friday's verdicts increased the total convicted to 105.

NO HUMAN MOTIVE

"I do not know whether to look for a human motive in this crime or to describe it as an animal urge," the presiding judge said.

"The raiders were possessed of a spirit of atavistic reversion to Kikuyu tribal custom. The whole massacre was just a blank, uninteresting barbarism."

Most of the victims of the mass killing, the greatest single terroristic outburst since the nationalist-minded society launched a campaign in 1952 to drive white men from Kenya, were Kikuyu home guardsmen or government officials and their families.

About 50 men disguised in long black coats to resemble tribal policemen led the raid. They crept up on the village of Lari and slew natives sentries

More than 1,100 persons, mostly natives, have been killed in the long struggle. Britain threw about 12,000 British troops into a drive to suppress the society, then instituted a campaign for surrender of the outlaws.

Meanwhile, more Kikuyu tribesmen surrendered at Njabini police outpost Friday from the forest fringe of the rugged Aberdare mountain range.

32 SURRENDERED
Their surrender raised to 32 the number of Mau Mau terrorists to surrender in the last week. This is the first major response to the surrender offer announced a month ago by Gen. Sir George Erskine, commander of the anti-terrorist campaign.

The surrenders started rolling last Friday when four nervous tribesmen crept out of the forests and told police many of their fellows also were anxious to desert but were afraid to come out.

Giving assurances of protection, the police sent the natives back into the jungle with instructions to would-be deserters on how to reach safety. During the next six days they brought back 22 members of some of the main gangs.

Polish Delegate Seeks Asylum

NEW YORK (AP)—A Polish diplomat, desperate for freedom after nightmarish years behind the Iron Curtain, sought American asylum Friday after a dramatic, secret flight from his United Nations delegation.

"Life in Poland was a nightmare," said Dr. Marek Korowicz, 50, a Roman Catholic and a brilliant one-time professor of international law at Krakow University.

A gaunt, grey, sharp-featured man, he was chosen September 6 as first alternate of the Polish delegation to the UN. He arrived in the United States just four days ago.

Korowicz, his worldly goods in a single suitcase, slipped from his midtown hotel at early dawn Wednesday for a rendezvous with an old friend from the Polish underground—and freedom.

The idea of escape, Korowicz said, was born 12 years ago when he first learned he was to come to the U.S.

Korowicz has no family in Poland.

Schooner To Cruise Five Years

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—

The 50-foot schooner "Artfall" sailed through the Golden Gate Friday to begin a five-year dream cruise around the world.

The voyage brings realization to plans of Dr. W. F. Holcomb, prominent Oakland orthopedic surgeon who retired from practice in order to carry them out.

His crew included his wife, Marilyn; Roy Jonsson, 21-year-old pre-law student at the University of California, and Dr. Dean Smith, of Binghamton, N.Y.

Smith is a close friend of Holcomb who has also permanently traded his white surgeon's gown for a pair of dungarees.

The landfall has no fixed itinerary but will sail where the winds and the whims of her crew take her. Tentatively, she will sail down the coast and stop at Cedras Island, off Baja California, then cruise to New Zealand and Australia.

Then the schooner probably will sail into the Indian Ocean, with a possible detour into the Philippines. By the summer of 1955, the party should be in the Mediterranean, on their way to ports of Western Europe, Britain and Scandinavia.

Trieste, strategic port on the Adriatic gulf, was first fortified by the Romans in 33 B.C.

Canadians spent $440 per capita in retail stores in 1951, compared with $299 in 1941.

Fair Judges Taxed In Industrial Show

For three Nanaimo newspapermen the proof of that statement became abundantly clear. They were the judges, and if they had a headache after

SMALL MARGIN

The separation of points between ultimate winner and the first eliminated of the finalists was indeed small, and the judges agreed they could have flipped a coin for their decision between the first and second the shows, it was not because what they saw was inadequate but because of the difficulty they experienced in picking winners from such an array of quality.

SELECTIONS MADE

Ultimately they came up with the one, two, three winners in this order: Gallant's Furniture of Nanaimo, Wardill's Bicycle Shop, Nanaimo, and the Electrical Service League of B.C.

Fair officials laid down a strict standard upon which to judge, attraction of the most spectators, most effort in display, most advertising value and most unusual or artistic display.

SCORES OF DISPLAYS

There were scores of displays to be judged and they all hit a degree of excellence comparative with the overall peak of the fair this year.

To the winners goes the mayor's award of merit and other awards.

Washington police authorities who are searching the dense bush in the Port Angeles area for missing Wilkinson Road Mental Home fugitive, James Carroll Hall, are biding their time until hunger drives the fugitive out into the open.

Chicks Sold Too Cheaply

Hatchery Pricing Policy Under Fire

Sloppy accounting methods of hatchery operators came under fire Friday at the Canadian Federation of Hatchery Associations convention at the Empress Hotel.

V. Howard Charwick, C.A., of

S. L. Rodway, secretary manager of the Poultry Products Institute, told delegates that if his organization were given sufficient support it could revolutionize the poultry industry.

that in the past chicks have been sold too cheaply.

Hatcherymen were told that in computing their costs many of them have overlooked many items of cost, such as depreciation, interest on capital, their own wages and a reasonable amount of profit.

COMPETITIVE POLICY

Some hatcherymen price their chicks by finding out what the other fellow is going to charge and then setting their prices lower, one prominent hatchery owner claimed.

S. J. Sanders, president of the federation, had something to say on that subject at an earlier meeting.

"It is of great concern to me, as it must be to most of you, when started chicks up to several weeks of age, are sold at the price of day-old chicks, or only slightly higher," Mr. Sanders said.

If this amounted to any great percentage of the total output it would be impossible to make a reasonable profit if one at all. It is important that each and every operator should set his machines in accord with the actual demand and not what he hopes it will be, he said.

He warned that the operator, by building large surpluses, is creating a demand for started chicks which is like a Frankenstein and might well destroy him.

WORK COLLECTIVELY

Working collectively in an understanding manner we could relieve this situation, if not solve it, he suggested. Individually we will only aggravate it.

"In many cases the same profit or even a greater profit can be made by a reduced output, and by this I don't mean that output should be drastically reduced, but reduced to a point where the current demand will be met."

Better methods of merchandising has increased demand for poultry, he told members. This has increased the demand for broiler chicks the year round and should be of untold benefit to all hatcherymen.

NO MARGIN FOR PROFIT

He advised delegates that many operators, in an endeavor to climb aboard the bandwagon, are now producing chicks at a price which leaves very little, if any, chance for profit.

"Others have no intention of meeting these low prices, and as a producer of hatching eggs as well as chicks I can tell you it paid me to sell eggs," he said.

COSTS IGNORED

"It is amazing to find some operators selling summer and fall chicks at the same price or even lower than they do earlier in the year. They appear to be entirely ignorant of the cost of production," he remarked.

"We hatcherymen must produce a chick to do the job, whether it is for egg production or meat. If we are sincere in our objective, it will not be necessary to meet the lowest price."

Sacred 'Original' Visits in Victoria

Rene Pelletier, one of the original group of 15 of Social Crediters elected to the federal parliament in 1935, is currently visiting Victoria on vacation.

Mr. Pelletier was elected from the Alberta Peace River block at the age of 27, to become perhaps the youngest member ever elected to the federal house. He served until 1940 when he joined the army as a staff officer. Following his discharge in 1946 he bought a farm in the Calgary district and hasn't re-entered politics.

LAUDS GOVERNMENT

Mr. Pelletier said he believed the Social Credit government in

UBC Planning Full Survey On Tourists

VANCOUVER (CP)—A complete survey of what makes the tourist tick will be undertaken over the winter by the University of British Columbia for the Vancouver Tourist Association.

Commissioner J. V. Hughes announced the project to directors at a VTA meeting Thursday night. He has asked Professors E. D. McPhee and Stanley Oberg of the UBC commerce department for the survey.

Besides computing the number of tourists who visit Vancouver, the survey will discover what prompted the tourists to come, what most impressed them, how much each spent and where, what they found distasteful.

"It was very good of UBC," said Hughes. "When we get this information, we'll really be able to talk turkey with the business firms of Vancouver."

Registrar Of Voters Sanctioned

Appointment of a special registrar to secure names for the 1953 voters list squeezed by council on a vote of 6-4.

The registrar would have authority to visit householders and licensees in their offices, factories and homes and arrange to swear them in.

Some members of council opposed the appointment, to cost the city $160 a month for two months, on the grounds that if persons value their franchise they should come to City Hall to register.

Victorian Wins Rank

Second Lieutenant I. D. Burch of Victoria was one of three officer-cadets to graduate Friday from the RCOC school at Longue Pointe ordnance depot.

Other graduates included Cadets E. T. Humbeck of Salmon Arm, B.C., and R. R. Spencer of Calgary, Alta., who received certificates as second lieutenants.

Protest on Expulsion Declared 'Misleading'

WEDNESDAY asking all TLC unions to protest the expulsion, claiming the "TLC executive went behind the backs" of delegates in taking the action.

Mr. Alsbury said "The TLC executive didn't go behind the backs of its 500,000 members to expel the fishermen. The convention had taken its stand in dealing with Communism. One resolution reaffirmed its constitutional position barring Communists as delegates and officers."

"This," Mr. Alsbury said, "is not a denial of political or trade union rights as Communists charge."

The fishermen's union, expelled from the TLC last month after the Congress' convention at Ottawa, issued an appeal

In the World Religion

BY F. GWYNNE LIGHTBOURN

The fifth German Evangelical Kirchentag, held at Hamburg last month, was in some respects the greatest and most significant lay assembly of its kind for years. Around St. Michael's Church, where the opening service took place, was an overflow crowd of 60,000; 10,000 men and women from the Soviet Zone attended the sessions; 250,000 joined in the torchlit celebration of the "counter evening"; the Chancellor of the Federal Republic, Dr. Adenauer, who has since been returned to office, brought the greetings of the government; the Rev. F. H. House brought the good wishes of the Archbishop of Canterbury, and the speakers included Dr. Martin Niemöller, Bishop Otto Dibelius of Berlin and Bishop Hans Lilje of Hanover.

Questions discussed in the study groups at the Kirchentag covered a wide field—"How can we become a praying Church?"—"What holds parents and children together?"—"How can bitterness be removed from our social and political life?"—"What do people do with their money?" A German Methodist Bishop, Dr. Wunderlich, preached at matins in the Anglican Church, and a great crowd attended a football match between clubs representing Hamburg and Birmingham.

Ninety leading Roman Catholic Biblical scholars met recently in Ottawa for the 16th general meeting of the Catholic Biblical Association of America. Members of the association are engaged in a new translation of the Bible from the original tongues, the books from Genesis to Ruth having been published last year. The second of the four projected volumes is to be published next year.

Rev. C. H. Elliott retired from the active ministry of the United Church of Canada 24 years ago. This year, at the age of 80, and after celebrating with his wife the 65th anniversary of their marriage, he took a sabbatical charge at Caesarea, Ontario. Mr. Elliott spent the early years of his ministry in the pioneer areas of northern Ontario.

Rev. J. D. Nelson MacDonald, minister of the United Church in Dartmouth, N.S., received an honorary degree of LL.D. from St. Francis Xavier University. The citation referred to him as "one of the original promoters of adult education in the Atlantic Provinces."

Dr. Clarence Tucker Craig, dean of Drew Theological School, Madison, New Jersey, who died last month at the age of 58, had taught in three American theological colleges for 25 years, and was very active in the world Faith and Order Movement and in the American Bible Society. He contributed to the translation of the Revised Standard Version of the New Testament, and was the author of a number of books, best known among which are "The Beginning of Christianity" and "One God, One World."

Gustavo Rojas Pinilla, President of Colombia, told a gathering of American journalists in Bogota that the new government guarantees freedom of worship as set forth in the constitution of his nation, but reminded them that nearly all Colombians are Roman Catholics, and that Protestants must "use great care in carrying on a religious propaganda which could injure the sentiments of our people."

Under the chairmanship of Rev. Noel Mailloux, director of the Institute of Psychology in the University of Montreal, a provisional committee has been set up to organize the institute across Canada, and to draw together those actively interested in the scientific study and prevention of crime.

The Spotlight

BY GRANTLAND RICE

Jim Braddock was a good puncher, but a much better boxer. He won the heavyweight title from Max Baer by outboxing him—not by outslugging him, who was a pretty good puncher. Jim kept circling to Baer's right hand and there was nothing baffled Max could do about it.

Being on the boxer's side is one of the main reasons Braddock is picking Roland La Starza to whip Rocky Marciano in their coming fight. He thinks La Starza is much the better boxer.

"Check back and you'll find the better boxer nearly always wins," says Braddock. "Not always, but most of the time. Jim Corbett had Jim Jeffries licked until Corbett got careless. And Jeffries was a tough one to beat over that long route."

DEMPEY LOST OUT
Jack Dempsey, a great fighter, went 45 rounds with Tom Gibbons and Gene Tunney with only one knockdown to his credit. You've got to hit a man solidly to hurt him. Anybody can be hit at certain times. But Marciano is certain to be hit many times, unless he lands one in a hurry. La Starza, the better boxer, may keep Tom being tagged.

"When a fellow has a punch like Marciano he is likely to forget about his boxing or overlook it. He figures the punch is enough. And if he lands, it is often more than enough. But it's no sure thing if he will."

I was talking with Ray Greb, one of the best trainers and all-around boxing men in the business. He was not attempting on this occasion to pick any winner, but he did say something about keeping sharp.

Greb Always Fought
"The best way and the only way is through fighting," said Ray. "You can't pick up any particular sharpness with sparring partners. Harry Greb never had to train for he was nearly always fighting. Sometimes he'd have four fights in a week."

"Before Greb had quit fighting he told me once that he had already had over 425 fights," I commented.

"How can you have that many fights and have any time to train?" Ray replied.

Anyway, Ray seemed to think he would like a busier La Starza in the last two years.

This is what leaves the fight in the dark: Such opponents as Dan Buccerotti and Rex Layne are not enough to judge on. They mean little in the fight game. In other words, La Starza would have been moving up much faster and would have been in much better fighting shape if he had five or six tough contests under his belt.

So far as his late training is concerned, Rolfe has done about all that could be asked. He has worked earnestly and appears confident enough. Whether he ever dreams about Rocky's right or left landing on his jaw is not known.

It took Rocky 13 rounds to land solidly on Joe Walcott in their first meeting and it took him one round to do the same at the second onslaught. That's too much improvement. Most of it was due to the complete dissolution or disintegration of Walcott, who suddenly realized he was a very tired old man who wanted to sit down and dream.

Deer Wily as Ducks? Or Just Plain Stupid?

BY KINGSLEY BROWN JR.

HALIFAX (CP)—Some hunters say deer are as wily as a flock of spooked ducks. Others say they are stupid.

The controversy will gain impetus when Nova Scotia's deer season opens October 15 because more deer will be hunted with a bow and arrow than since the days of the Micmacs.

The argument about a deer's intelligence usually begins when one is bagged by an arrow.

Archers claim you've got to be a better hunter to get a deer with an arrow. Riflemen say it's just luck, upstopping, or that deer aren't too bright anyway.

By upstopping they mean a bow is not a proper weapon. By the deer being stupid, they usually are referring to the timid whittail's inherent curiosity.

DEMAND FOR EQUIPMENT
The archers, however, are finding plenty of converts. Sport shops and department stores report they are selling more archery equipment, including broadhead arrows for big game, than ever before.

And fish and game officials say hunters are turning in droves to the bow as a weapon in the province's deer-ridden forests, where 40,000 were reported killed last year.

Nova Scotia's archers, believed to number in the thousands, got a boost in prestige recently when Newfoundland announced it was permissible to kill moose and caribou with a bow.

Hitting moose generally met at close range in their bush country habitat. It is not considered difficult by bowmen. Caribou, however, live in barren country where there is little cover. Kills are at long range.

ARROW MORE POWERFUL
Michigan wildlife officials have proved that an arrow propelled by a modern bow has more penetrating power than a bullet from a 30-30 rifle, which has killed more deer than any other.

A deer wounded by an arrow will travel only half as far, all things being equal, as one wounded by a bullet.

There is much to recommend a bow.

An archer pays the same license fee as the rifleman in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

Rifles start at about $80 in price, while a good bow can be bought for $19. Cartridges cost roughly 20 cents each, and a hunting arrow, which can be used indefinitely, about $1.25.

October 5 Set To Launch 'Y' Classes

Archie McKinnon YMCA swimming coach, announced Friday that all beginners' swimming classes will get under way at the YMCA on October 5.

An organization night under the direction of swimming coaches Jack Todd, Bob Johnson and Marg Naysmith will be held Wednesday night at the YMCA. Boys and girls under 13 years of age will be tested for the midget club at 5 p.m., and youngsters under 17 years of age will be tested at 7 p.m.

An effort will be made this year to build a strong Flying Y swimming team to re-establish the club back into the competitive field. Any boy or girl with ability in any of the four competitive strokes—crawl, breast stroke, butterfly or backstroke—is invited to attend the first practice.

The following week will see all clubs back into their regular training nights for the winter season.

SILVER HONORS
A score of two-up on silver earned Mrs. D. Rhys-Jones silver division honors in a women's par competition held at Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club on Thursday. Mrs. A. C. Butler bettered par by one stroke to top bronze division play.

Golf—Here's How

BY SAM SNEAD

I'm going to talk a little today about the use of the No. 3 wood. This is a very useful club when you need a little more distance than you can obtain with an iron. It also comes in handy when you haven't got a good enough fairway lie for a brassie shot, or where you want to loft the ball quickly with a wood in order to clear some obstacle.

You swing the No. 3 just as you do any other wood club. The only difference is that you play it just a little further back from your left heel so that you hit it right at the bottom of the arc on your downswing instead of just after, as with the other woods.

The reason for this is that there is enough loft built into the face of a No. 3 wood so that it isn't necessary to hit it slightly on the upswing as with the other woods. In other words you play it more like an iron shot for best results.

Of course, one other difference between the No. 3 wood and the others is that it is shorter and therefore you stand a little closer to the ball and take a somewhat more upright swing, which is good.

Long Branch Turns Back West's Minto Cup Drive

TORONTO (CP)—Long Branch Monarchs kept alive their hopes of winning the Minto Cup by defeating New Westminster Salmonacs, 16-6, Friday night in the third game of the best-of-five Canadian junior ice hockey series.

It was the first loss of the season for the easterners.

New Westminster used the same style of play that won them the openers Monday and Wednesday, but greater tension caused rougher play and penalties cost the Salmonacs five goals.

More than 5,000 man hours of work, all by CJVI engineers, went into the design and construction of equipment in the new studios opening this week. ## Coast's Oldest Radio Station Having Formal Opening Tonight

In October, 1941, Taylor, Dwyer and Carson Ltd. took over the station, which was then known as CFCB, the oldest radio station on the coast. It had been operated up to that time by G. W. Dwyer.

The station was renamed CJVI and power increased from 100 to 500 watts.

On January 1, 1954, CJVI was granted permission by the CBC to operate as a Dominion Network Station.

On January 1, 1953, CJVI switched from non-commercial to commercial transmission and moved to its new site from Portage Street.

The station's new studios are located at 817 Fort Street, and the new transmitter is located at 817 Fort Street.

Uncle Wiggily Story

By Howard Davis

ALL READY

Uncle Wiggily, sitting in the private cabin aboard his Amusement Raft in Frog Pond, was looking at Boson, the jolly old sea dog. Boson was looking at the rabbit gentleman.

Uncle Wiggily was twinkling his pink nose. The old sea dog was driving nails into a wooden box that stood on the floor of the cabin.

"Let me get this straight and right, Boson. If you please," said Uncle Wiggily.

"As I understand it, Boson," continued Mr. Longears, the third trick that you are now making for me is to be a sudden disappearance trick. Is that right?"

"That's right, Cap'n Wiggily," said Boson.

"To disappear means to go away, vanish, get out of sight," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Shiver my thud-dimensioned mussel glasses," Cap'n Wiggily said.

"But if I disappear, vanish, go away and get out of sight," said Boson.

Longears as he stood up and looked at the box Boson had made.

"Now we are going to have a sort of that or rehearsal," said the old sea dog. "Well do the disappearing act here in your cabin. After you practice it we will go to Hollow Tree School and do the trick there. Are you ready, Cap'n Wiggily?"

"I am ready, Boson."

"Then I will tell you a little about this trick. I have here a box for you to stand in if you will bend down your long ears a little."

YOU NEED THESE

Y ou probably won't buy a pig of lead, a slab of zinc or a bar of silver. But you do buy many things containing these metals.

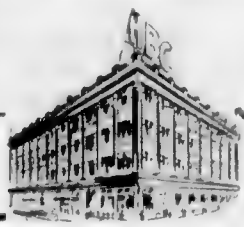

Ethyl Gasoline and the batteries in your car need lead... a flashlight battery and galvanized pipe need zinc... your newspaper or magazine cannot be produced without both. In your tableware and in your camera film there is silver... So eventually, Cominco comes to you in many ways.

Cominco is a typical Canadian industry—men of faith invested in it—men of vision built it—men of skill operated it. The combination was successful, and customers approved and the product sold. The Company grew and prospered. As it grew, part of its prosperity was ploughed back into new buildings and equipment. As a result it grew and prospered on a larger scale—to provide more jobs—to build communities—to develop further resources and to bring to millions, products which play an important part in their every day life.

Fall Flowers at Summer Show

Victoria Horticultural Society summer show opened at the Crystal Garden Friday and will continue today in the lower ballroom. One of the best shows in years, it features a profuse display of chrysanthemums, but dahlias, other fall flowers, vegetables and fruit are very much in evidence. Picture shows one of the big winners of the show, Mrs. C. J. Freeborn, 436 Durban, posing beside a display of 'mums and fall flowers arranged by the chrysanthemum group of the Victoria Horticultural Society. (See story on Page 2.)

VOTE TO EXTEND TO 19-YEAR-OLDS

Horse Owner Held

LONDON (Reuters).—Scotland Yard arrested four men Friday accused of engineering the greatest attempted betting coup in modern history.

The men—two bookmakers and two racehorse owners—will appear in court here today on charges of heading a conspiracy to defraud the Bath Race Track Club.

Since last July when two horses were allegedly switched at the last minute, Scotland Yard detectives have been trying to crack the case.

The announcement of the arrest came shortly after rag peddler Leonard Phillips, 31, was sentenced to three months in prison at Bath for slicing telephone cables at the track. He cut them half an hour before a horse running as Francasi, a 10-to-1 longshot, won the disputed race.

Tall, broad-shouldered Maurice Williams, 46, who bought four horses in France early this summer, was one of the four arrested men. Others were London bookmaker Harry Kelly, Welsh bookmaker Gomer Charles, and William Rook who bought the winning horse from Williams after the disputed race. Bookmaking is legal in Britain.

Scotland Yard chased down dozens of bogus clues before Kelly announced he was willing to provide information which would "blow the case wide open."

Under Death Sentence of Reds

Boris Metiv, a chemist of St. John, N.B., is under sentence of death from a Bulgarian court. His crime is that he did not return to his homeland after six months' absence, which constitutes a major offense under Bulgarian Communist rule. He came to Canada as a political refugee, worked as a dishwasher until he found employment as a chemical engineer. He plans to remain in Canada with his wife and son. (Central Press Canadian.)

Socreds Bare Plan

BY T. A. MYERS

Nineteen-year-olds will be given the vote under a "complete revision" of the Provincial Elections Act announced by Premier Bennett Thursday in the legislature.

The premier also made it clear that he will ask for abolition of the controversial alternative ballot this session, and for a shortening of election campaigns.

Mr. Bennett, in his first speech of the session, expressed concern that "many people who should be entitled to vote" now do not have that right.

Young people who had turned 21 since this summer's election would have to wait another four years before getting a chance to vote. They would be 25 before first exercising the chief privilege of citizenship. "Young people coming out of schools and colleges... with 12 or 13 years of schooling" were responsible enough to vote, he said.

"I hope this session we can completely revise the Election Act... I hope the age will be reduced."

The premier did not say what "lower age" he had in mind. But it was learned unofficially later the new minimum would be 19.

The decision to cut two years off the voting age was a complete surprise.

The premier also ended any doubts about abolition of the alternative ballot. He noted that the CCF had called for an end to the 123 voting system, and "I hope the legislature can oblige him in that respect."

He pointed out, however, that without the alternative ballot in the last election, "the two old-line parties would have had representation in this house at all."

West Offers Free Travel

BONN (AP).—The Western Allies put Russia on the spot Friday by offering to lift their restrictions on free travel throughout all Germany September 30, provided the Russians will do the same.

No Credit Buying In Prairie Town

GILBERT PLAINS, Man. (CP).—No more purchasing with promises in this Manitoba community. Credit's kaput.

The bill collector may have to leave town for lack of work, or so business men hope. For in these days of "nothing down, easy payments" they have banded together and substituted cash on the line for credit buying. And no exceptions.

They announced Friday that they will stop extending credit to their customers starting October 1. By cutting down on bookkeeping and other costs, they told the people, they can sell at lower prices.

Once accounts owing have been paid off, all transactions will be made in cash in this farming town of approximately 800 persons.

What's the customer reaction? Well, the manager of a local department store said "we haven't had any complaints but some of the other stores have had the misfortune of having a customer or two blowing up in their clerks' faces."

The manager quoted some customers who admit they get carried away while shopping, as saying the business men are doing them a favor.

A bit of the experiment's background—business participation was estimated at "about 100 per cent" was outlined by the manager to The Canadian Press. The idea came from some

Rocks Start Back

As a crowd of more than 5,000 roared, Victoria Shamrocks Friday night took a step back on the Mann Cup route as they eased to an 8-7, impressive win.

The game was close and rough throughout, but the Trailermen never got untracked against determined Irish checking. The game threatens to be argued before the Canadian Lacrosse Association, as Peter objected bitterly throughout and manager Pup Curtin was ejected from the arena.

Sect Women Convicted

VANCOUVER (CP).—Dressed in sombre colors, four Doukhobor women were convicted Friday of parading in the nude in their tent village at Perry Sidling in the Kootenays September 9.

The silent women came into court one by one on the arm of a police matron, and within minutes were pronounced guilty by Magistrate Graham Ladner.

Each trial took less than 10 minutes. The young and the old were convicted and remanded until Monday for sentence.

The youngest, Helen Repin, was 21, the oldest, Mrs. Anne Solovieff, about 80.

Only Mrs. Solovieff uttered a word. As she entered the courtroom in a suburban Burnaby community hall, she muttered: "Slava Bohu" praise the Lord—a traditional Doukhobor greeting.

She wore a pink dress and a man's brown coat and was frail and grey-haired. They were the first of 71 women to stand trial. Sixteen more were convicted Friday, bringing the complete number so far found guilty to 29. There have been no dismissals and no acquittals.

The other two women convicted were Annie Osochoff and Mabel Kaimikoff. Mrs. Osochoff kept her eyes closed during her eight-minute trial.

There were signs that the hunger strike of the Doukhobors may soon end. Many of the men now are taking fruit juices, but they still refuse solid foods.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Friday he was "not prepared to comment upon suggestions of Communist influence in the Kootenays."

He had been asked about a report from Montevideo, quoting Stefan Sorokin, spiritual leader of the Sons of Freedom, as blaming "fanatics instigated by Communists in Canada" for recent nude demonstrations in the Doukhobor country.

Sorokin has been in Uruguay trying to arrange for migration of some of the Doukhobors to that country.

Mr. Bonner said he had "not been advised of the position of the Sons with respect to entering Uruguay."

Dies in East

GORDON GRAYDON

Progressive Conservative member of parliament for Peel and his party's foreign affairs expert, Gordon Graydon died in hospital here Friday night. He was 56.

No Trace of Woman

ZURICH (Reuters).—The international hunt for dark-haired, attractive Mrs. Melinda Maclean appears to be heading towards the same frustrating dead end as the search for her British diplomat husband two years ago.

The latest clue, from a Swiss railroad conductor Friday, added weight to the theory that she has vanished behind the Iron Curtain with her three children to join her husband, Donald, former chief of the British foreign office's American department.

The conductor told police he had seen a woman meeting Mrs. Maclean's description on the 6.58 p.m. train last Friday from Lausanne to Buchs, on the Austrian frontier. He said she was travelling first class with either two or three children.

From Buchs, Mrs. Maclean could have made train connections for Vienna and crossed into the Soviet sector Saturday afternoon without detection. But, as in the case of her husband, who vanished from a cross-channel ferry to France, there is no convincing evidence to bolster this theory.

The 37-year-old American-born woman disappeared a week ago after driving from her home in Geneva with her children to Lausanne. She parked her car in a garage there and said she would be back "in a week." Police are standing guard over the car but are virtually convinced she will not return.

One Got Away; For 100, Delay

MOBILE, Ala. (UP).—Railway officials and hundreds of motorists would like to find the man who uncoupled a freight train at a crossing here so he could get across faster.

A witness told police an unidentified man left his car when the road has paid all its operating expenses... and it's not doing so now. Mr. Bennett.

It Isn't Worth Risking Your Life

If You're Awakened by Burglars, Go Back to Sleep

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP).—If you hear a burglar rattling around in your bedroom, don't try to be a hero. Your best bet is to play dead to the world.

This advice on the proper nocturnal etiquette if a burglar crashed your boudoir comes from Prof. Richard L. Holcomb, State University of Iowa specialist in police methods and an authority on the lore of house-breaking.

A former Kansas City, Mo., police lieutenant, Holcomb has assembled a complete compendium of breaking and entering in a book called "Protection Against Burglary."

He worked both sides of the street in gathering his material.

"I found that one kind of burglar actually prefers to work in the same room where his victims are sleeping—so he can keep his eye on them."

This type of burglar can be extremely dangerous. If he disturbs your slumber, the best thing to do is just go right on letting him think you're asleep.

"Don't sacrifice your life just to save $50, $100, or even $500 a burglar may find in your room," says Holcomb.

Other pointers Holcomb gleaned from the men who knew house-breaking best.

That house key you hide under the porch flower pot is duck-soup for a burglar to find.

If you keep your money at home (which is foolish) don't brag about it.

The best safeguard against burglary in a place of business is to keep it well lighted. A smart watchdog is a good protection for your home, if he can be trained to bark and keep barking whenever an intruder comes around.

Most burglars, Holcomb says, tend to become specialists. Sometimes they even get into a rut.

"If a burglar has success in breaking in through rear windows, he may make a career of breaking in through rear windows even though there may be easier places to gain entrance."

On the other hand, some burglars are strictly opportunists. If they see a place that looks easy they'll break in on the spot without any advance planning.

Among the specialists is the "matinee burglar" who operates in the afternoons when many housewives are away at the movies shopping or at the bridge club.

Another type is the "party burglar." He enters while a party is going full blast in one part of the house and heads for the room where guests have piled coats and purses.

If you hear a burglar before he has actually broken into your home Holcomb advises, it's effective to turn on the lights and make some noise.
